

Description Of Scholarship Statement Guidance – Clinical Faculty
Ohio State School of Health and Rehabilitation Sciences

In the Ohio State School of Health and Rehabilitation Sciences, the “clinical track” is reserved for faculty members whose primary responsibility is teaching. It is also expected that any clinical faculty member will contribute to scholarly activity within their profession. This activity may include contributions to discovery (i.e. providing expertise within a research team), grantsmanship, scholarly presentations, authorship of peer-reviewed materials, development of clinical guidelines, etc. The scholarship of discovery, scholarship of integration, scholarship of application, and scholarship of teaching and learning are all valued forms of scholarship for clinical faculty.

As part of the selection process in HRS, candidates for clinical faculty positions are asked to submit a scholarship plan. The purpose of this scholarship plan is to provide a foundation of the work you have previously completed and should capture your scholarship interests, vision and creativity. Starting with your current/recent scholarship identify what the next steps may be and how/what they will contribute to your ongoing scholarship goals. The scholarship plan should not be a to-do list or a time management tool. It should establish your contribution to your focus area and how you will build upon this to advance your scholarship over the next 5 years.
